WOMEN RECEIVE DIPLOMAS.

Growth of Training School in Twenty-Two Years Is Shown.

The Women's Training School has completed its twenty-second year. During the first years of the institution the managers were obliged to seek pupils and were well pleased when they succeeded in getting a pupil to take a course of twelve lessons.

Now pupils seek the Training School and enter for full terms, many entering for the regular course of household economics. From January 1, 1902, until January 1, 1904, the enrollment in the various classes was as follows: Cooking, 130; household management, 34; laundry work, 12; plain sewing, 8; dressmaking, 34; millinery, 18; stenography, 50; typewriting, 50. The following fifty-two pupils have completed the regular course and have received certificates: Alma Winkel, Gertrude Dahmann, Agnes Weidman, Margaret Zengel, Frederica Brader, Maud Tibbitts, Josephine Venare, Jennie Dwight, in cooking and household management. In the sewing course Sidney Walter, Olga Berkner, Catherine Albers, Lydia

DEMAND NATIONAL AND STATE HELP.

Delegates to Good Roads Convention Differ Regarding Ways and Means.

MAY BE MADE AN ISSUE.

Congressman Vandiver Says Government Should Appropriately $20,000,000 a Year—Will Elect Officers To-Day.

A difference of opinion caused a little friction at the fifth session of the Good Roads Convention yesterday, and developed the fact that, while the delegates are a unit in demanding good roads, a variety of opinions is held as to the most feasible method of obtaining them.

J. E. Lloyd, the member of Congress from the First Missouri District, made a short speech, in which he declared that agitation of the subject among the farmers was the solution of the road-building problem. He said that help from Government and State could not be expected until the people were fully alive to the importance of the issue. He declared that when the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture told of the 20 engineers who were employed in the Bureau of Soil Investigation he did not tell that only sixteen persons were connected with the office of Road Inquiry, because he was ashamed to do so.

Mr. Lloyd declared that the initiative belonged to the people, and that when they were fully aroused legislative action could be secured, but not before that time.

At the close of Mr. Lloyd's speech Mr. Richardson, the secretary of the National Good Roads Association, secured the floor to speak with Mr. Lloyd. He declared that if Mr. Lloyd's plan were followed good roads never would be secured. He advocated pushing the bills now before Congress, putting all members on record and placing all parties to good roads in their national platform.

Members of delegations from many States were attempting to secure recognition at the end of Mr. Richardson's address, but Chairman Lloyd hastily put a long-pending motion to adjourn and declared the meeting adjourned.

SHOULD BE MADE AN ISSUE.

The first hour of the meeting was given over to five-minute talks from delegates from the various States. All the States were heard from and this order of proceeding will be taken up this morning, when the closing session is opened.

Congressman W. D. Vandiver was greeted with applause when he came to speak. He advocated both State and Government aid, and seemed to catch the mood of the audience. He declared the question should not be kept out of politics, but should be made an issue. He said, in part:

"In the progress of civilization, in the practical arts of manufacture, invention and science, America has surpassed the rest of the world, and yet, in the building of roads we are behind every other civilized country in the world. I want this to be the next forward movement of America. I want it to be the great practical question which our government is to solve. The nation endures a monument of practical genius of the great Roman highway that led from Rome in every direction throughout Italy, and on to her distant provinces.

"I want the great American highway, which our Government first started in the old National Road from Cumberland, Md., across the Allegheny Mountains and Ohio prairies, to be extended in both directions until it will reach from ocean to ocean, and not stopping with that, want it to branch into every State in the Union, and subdivide until its branches penetrate every county of every State in the Union.

"I have no time now to argue the question, but only state the proposition that I am in favor of a Government appropriation of at least $20,000,000 a year out of the national Treasury to aid in this work. Let the national Government pay half of the cost of the road, and the State and the county or township in which the work is done, pay the other quarter. This will bring it within the reach of every farmer, and will give the farmer an opportunity to get back at least part of what he has contributed to the expense of the Government."

WILL COME IN AUTOMOBILES.

Augustus Post of New York, who has recently come from New York to St. Louis to speak, said that no association was willing to do more for the improvement of the roads than the automobilists. He pledged the hearty support of the association to the movement. He said that 2,000 persons would come to the World's Fair from New York, making the journey in automobiles. He has been touring the route and making arrangements for the journey.

J. C. Alves de Lima, the Brazilian delegate to the convention, spoke briefly, saying that America should have the best roads in the world, and that this would be the case in the near future this would be the case.

T. G. Harper, president of the Iowa Good Roads Association, told of the strides Iowa had taken in road-building, and how this State has led its State far behind in highway improvement.

A. A. In the portion of the hall allotted to Georgia, created much merriment by contradicting the various speakers, making a number of remarks, and in voting "no" in a loud voice on each vote.

The final meeting of the convention will be held to-day at the Music Hall. The programme will be arranged this morning and the business of the convention will be completed.

The present incumbents will probably be continued in office.

McINTIRE TRIAL CONTINUES.

President of Alleged "Get-Rich-Quick" Concern.

Much interest is being manifested in the trial of A. F. McIntire, former president of the Merchants' Brokerage and Commission Company, in the Federal District Court, on a charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes.

The Government alleges that the company was a get-rich-quick concern and obtained money from investors and did not use the money properly. Several young women stenographers were placed on the stand by the Government to support its claims.

The attorneys for McIntire introduced several well-known brokers in his defense, who testified that the defendant did much business with them during the time he is alleged to have used the mails for improper purposes.

W. J. Peck, who was one of the officers of the company, testified that he was on a similar charge last Thursday.

The McIntire trial will be resumed to-day.

ALARM CLOCK "GOES OFF" IN PASSENGER'S POCKET.

Friends Play a Joke Upon R. H. Baker and Afford Amusement on Olive Street Car.

The ringing of an alarm clock in the pocket of R. H. Baker of the Ely-Walker Dry Goods Company, while on board a westbound Olive street car, caused amusement among the passengers yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

The owner of the noisy timepiece was as much astonished as anyone else.

Mr. Baker had purchased the clock at noon, and put it in his coat pocket. He does not wear his coat during working hours, but leaves it hanging in the office of the firm.

Some of his fun-loving associates found out that the clock was in the coat pocket and they decided to play a practical joke on their friend, so while Mr. Baker was working they stealthily removed the clock from his coat, set it for 8:15, which is fifteen minutes after closing time, and then replaced it in his pocket.

The alarm in the street car was the result.
